You Know Me By Now

(FASJ50)

Scott Jacks returns with "You Know Me By Now", his second release.

The West Coast Canadian singer/songwriter's new CD infuses the lushly produced songs with elements of progressive rock, ambient, and jazz. The listener is taken on a journey through many tales, from the plight of thousands of Chinese immigrants whose toil built Canada's railway in the 19th century, to inner battles, and even the darkness of a first-person imaginings of a highway sniper. Interspersed are rich instrumentals that showcase Scott's atmospheric playing skills.

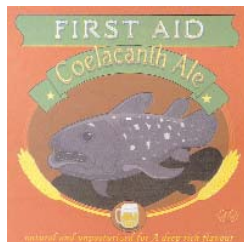

The CD is filled with lush keyboards and prominent acoustic guitar; Scott is an accomplished, largely self-taught multi-instrumentalist, and plays most of the instruments on "You Know Me By Now". The CD also features excellent guest work from Holly Burke (flute) , Sacha Fassaert (guitar) and others.

The sophisticated, full production on the CD displays Scott's varied influences (Todd Rundgren, Brian Wilson and many many others) and the CD's many instrumentals incorporate and highlight Scott's experience as both a soundtrack composer and session player. The varied instrumentation of "You Know Me By Now" also contains some surprises, including Scott's first recorded use of his latest instrument, the sitar.

The CD was recorded and co-produced by Paul Siczek (Terror of Tiny Town, Recurring) in various locations.
